MEASLES .- Since last report, three more cases of messles have come to the knowledge of the Board of Heolth, but all in foreign families. The houses in which these cases exist are placed under strict quarantine, being guarded by the police. It is to be hoped that the precautions taken by the Board will be effectual in preventing any further spread of the disease, and particularly that it may not get among the natives, with whom it is liable to prove very destructive of life. And in this connection we will say that we know of scarcely anything more culpa-ble than the neglect of proper precautions by those who may have come in contact with a case of the disease, more especially if they shall have been duly warned by a physician. SATURDAY, JUNE 7.

Some years ago, a company of Japanese acrobats made the tour of the United States, giving was brought to the Station House that a man had exhibitions of their skill, and on their way home | been stabbed on board the American bark Moro visited Honolulu. Among their number was a | Castle, lying at the old Custom House wharf. The youngster who, in performing his tricks, whether | man. a seaman named John Frederick, was found was wont to exclaim, " All right! " And thus The arrivals for the week have been sparse, as we have he got to be popularly known as " Little Allright." The Little Allright of our Island press is the editor of the Gazette. With him every one that holds a government position or is supposed to have money or influence is invariably all right, and whenever mentioned is subjected to an unmeasured amount of gush and outrageous flattery. We do not for a moment suppose that such sycophancy can be agreeable to those to trial at the July term of the Supreme Court on a whom it is addressed, but an apt quotation from | charge of murder. The testimony at the prelimi-Sterne is irresistibly brought to mind: "If thou be powerful in interest, and standest deified by a servile tribe of dependants,-why shouldest thou be proud,-because they are hungry? Scourge me such sycophants; they have turned the heads of thousands as well as thine.' THE APPROACH of the summer season, when we > may expect for weeks and months a succession of hot days and sweltering nights with frequent and more or less prolonged interruptions of the trade winds-brings to mind the subject of the sanitary condition of this city. During a number of years past we have not failed in our duty on each succeeding season to call public attention to the danger we are incurring by the continued neglect of proper sanitary regulations. As the city increases in population and is more compactly built and more shaded with trees, the danger of a pestilence proportionally increases. Already the premonitory symptoms are yearly advancing in the shape of fevers and other ailments that were quite unknown here twenty-five or thirty years ago. And does it not strike any mind that such must inevitably be the result, when it is remembered that in a city of say fifteen thousand inhabitants such a thing as cleaning out the cesspools and common sewers has been unknown during the past forty years, the invariable custom having been whenever such receptueles became full to simply cover them with earth, there to lie and fester? By actual count it has been ascertained that there are no less than fifteen hundred of these postilence-breeding pits within a radius the detendant, what he wanted-that was after I of thirty acres in this city! The wonder is that jumped out of my bunk; I was standing near the we have not been visited by the pestilence ere stepped forward and stabbed me; after I was this, and we may unquestionably attribute our | stabbed I sat down on a chest, and defendant tried escape to the prevalence of the trade wind. But we cannot always expect this immunity from the consequences of our own sloth. The city of with defendant; he had been drinking; I think if Buenos Ayres, as its name indicates was formerly considered one of the healthiest spots in South America; but in 1872 it was almost depopulated by a petilence of a novel character, which for a while puzzled the doctors and swept off daily over two hundred persons. Scientific investigation however showed that the pestilence was owing to the same evil of which we complain as existing here-the neglect of the common sewers. Later still, in 1876, the city of Rio Janeiro-naturally a very salubrious position,-was similarly visited by a pestilence, and from precisely the same cause, the neglect of sewage, and one hundred persons died every day for a month or more. These examples should certainly awaken us to a realization of the danger which is impending and which will surely some day overtake the inhabit-

But, it will be asked, what can be done to remedy the evil and avert the danger? In the absence of legislation, the Government has no power to build sewerage works for Honolulu, which would necessarily be extensive and costly. The Board of Health is by law "charged with the general oversight and care of the public health," and it has authority to order the removal of any " nuisance, source of filth or cause of sickness found on any private property; " but where the sources of filth and causes of sickness are so numerous as in this city to-day, the task of removing them would be like the cleansing of the Augean stables, and like that could only be | C. A. accomplished by turning a river through the city. It is not to be expected that any future Legislature will be induced to provide proper sewerage for Honolulu until after the city shall have been visited by a pestilence. In the meantime we advise as a necessary measure of precaution, the general adoption of earth-closets throughout the city, instead of the present system of fever-breeding vaults. The construction of these closets is simple and cheap, and we doubt not that any desired information on the subject can be obtained through the Board of Health.

Since the foregoing was written, a gentleman of this city informed us that he had read in a recent American publication a very simple formula for a disinfectant, which was recommended by high scientific authority. It consists merely of about a table-spoonfull of spirits of turpentine in a bucket of water poured into a cess-pool. Our informant, on trial, found it to be quite

The Colored Exodus.

The exodus of colored people from some of the Southern States, particularly Louisiana, South Carolina, Mississippi and Tennessee, to Kansas and other places in the west, is not conducted by a single central organization, as may be supposed, but by a number of local associations, each operating in its own section and working independently of kindred societies. The first of these associations seems to have been formed at Nashville, in 1869, by Columbus M. Johnson, who is at present the agent in Topeka, Kansas, of the "Tennessee Real Estate and Homestead Association. ' At first his scheme contemplated the purchase of small farms in Tennessee, so that the freed men and feeling. Mr. Johnson, who was a member of the committee, returned with a favorable report, but only a few families could be induced to leave their old homes, and the movement dragged along for years. Toward 1873, however, encouraging letters were received from the pioneer settlers urging their friends to migrate. In response to these invitations upward | friends, cannot be affected by cold reason and arguof two hundred families made the venture and located in Cherokee country, in the southeastern portion of the State. Thousands of colored men, have already left Louisiana, South Carolina and Mississippi, and the scene in St. Louis and other points on the Mississippi River are not unlike those at Castle Garden some years ago when the tide of European immigration was at its height. We note however, by papers received by the last mail, that some of the colored immigrants have already got enough of Kansas, and are anxious to return to their former homes. They are represented as saying, " De Souf am good 'nough fer me, boss.'

Homicide on Shipboard.

At an early bour on Sunday morning last, word he landed on his feet, his head or his posteriors, by Dr McGrew, who was immediately called, su. fering great pain from a knife wound in the abdomen, from which the bowels were protruding. After dressing the wound, the Doctor advised that the man be taken to the Queen's Hospital, where he died during Monday night, after making a dying declaration before the Police Magistrates who was requested by the Marshal to attend at the Hospital. John Brown, the seaman who stabbed Frederick, was promptly arrested and the examination on Wednesday resulted in his committal for nary examination did not differ materially from we give in fall, as follows: On this 1st day of June, 1879, John Frederick,

"I am a native of Finland. I am a seaman on board the American bark Morro Castle; I do not believe I will recover from the wound from which I am now suffering; I had not been on shore yesterday; all the men of the ship except three went ashore; I turned in late at night-had been mending clothes; my bunk was full of mosquitoes and I nailed a blanket to the bunk to keep out the mosquitoes; I went to sleep, and presently two of the crew and a stranger came in; one of the parties commenced pulling the blanket off my bunk : and I jumped out and asked him what he wanted; then we had some words and I asked him if he wanted to fight; I said all right, come along to the party named Victor; I did not strike him, but got hold of him to keep him from striking me; at that time the defendant John Brown was in the forecastle door with a knife in his hand, and said, come on deck, you ---; Victor and myself then stopped and had no more row; defendant then put one foot over the door into the forecastle and the other was on the steps, and he then shoved the knife into my groin; and said, take that, you ---; John A. Oblse was present; I saw him knock the knife out of desendant's hand, with a belaying pin, as he started to strike me a second time; this is John A. Ohlsen now present, this is John Brown the defendant now here present: I did not strike the defendant with anything ; I merely asked them what they wanted about my berth; I did not touch defendant at all; it was after I let go of Victor that detendant stabbed me; I merely asked Brown forecastle door at the time defendant Brown to stab me a second time, when Ohlsen knocked the knife out of his hand with a belaving pin; I had not been drinking; never had any difficulty he had not been drinking he would not have stabbed me. W. C. JONES. Police Justice, Honolula.

HONOLULU, June 2d, 1879. To the Elitor of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser: DEAR SIR:-This is no time for glittering generalities, for finely rounded periods. Say nothing more about trade, allude not to churches or times of service therein, speak not of a free library or of schools, or of masonic temples or of any thing that constitutes civilization; 'tis vain; 'tis the grimace of a galvanized corpse, 'tis a ghastly pantomime. Place a skull and crossbones over your columns and drape them in deepest mourning .fittest emblem of Hawaii. Introducing one Polynesia woman by the Stormbird, and permitting a hundred male Mongolians to land on these shores gives the Government the character of a procuress. Must the genial Polynesian, the impulsive maiden of Hawaii, fade away before the yellow sconrge Is there no hand to stay the plague? To-day, if the King were to say. "This thing must cease; my people must not be destroyed. If you come to Hawaii you must bring your women with you otherwise you will not be permitted to land on these shores;" What man or woman, Hawaiian born or foreign born, but would say, noble King! and sustain him to the uttermost? Truly yours, of June, 1879.

To the Editor of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser: What an idiot the Gazette man must be to allude as he did in such a scoffing, fault finding manner to the well written, sensible, earnest appeal on the Chinese Question which appeared May 31st in the P.

It is evident he does not consider the question in as serious a light as it merits, and that he fails to appreciate the efforts of others to stimulate action in

He grumbles because no method by which the numerous arrivals of single chinese men can be lessened is indicated; totally ignoring the suggestion that they be not allowed to come without females. If the whole community were as obtuse as he seems to be, I should earnestly entreat you not to cast your pearls before swine : but happily the sensible people are not all extinct yet, and are in readiness to hear and appreciate any thing more on this interesting topic, you may have in store for them. READER. To Editor of the Pacific Commercial Advertiser: Sin :- In your issue of May 31st, a prominent place is assigned to an article, or a communication on the subject of the Passion Play, published over the signature of a gentleman well-known as an active member of literary and religious circles. I have read this article with surprise and with sire to rebuke those who oppose the exhibition under discussion. If not an approval, it reads at least like a palliation of what some parts of Christendom regard as one of the greatest profanities of the day. So long as your critic was left free to follow his own taste or discretion in supporting this exhibition, his claim that the clergy opposed it because "they hardly knew what they were talking about," seems an unnecessary fling, and I doubtless run the risk of similar treatment. But even with this risk I venture to think that such an article as I am referring to, demands a clear and emphatic protest from those who regard this Passion Play as beyond the right of palliation. Your critic is doubtless correct in attributing some of the distaste of Christians for this exhibition to that feeling which would forbid the public representation of the private history of any man now living, or whose immediate friends or relatives might be now living. That is the objection of a man of taste

We are told that in the Last Supper, the Agony in the Garden and the Betrayal by Judas, the acting was realistic and effective, attended as it was by appropriate scenery and costumes.

Can it be that He was wounded for our transgressions and bruised for our iniquities, and that those for whom He was wounded can go calmly to see their fellow sinners travesty those terrible scenes? There is something here which taste and feeling cannot touch. Patriotism, love of home, reverence for lost ment; and far higher than patriotism, love, or reverence for lost friends, is the sacred place where men enshrine the memory of their Redeemer's

Your correspondent briefly states that the last sct-"It is finished" -was not given. Long tradition has given a kind of sanction to the representation by peasants of the Passion Play, in the village where it is held once in ten years, but the instinct of Christendom is in keeping with the public sentiment of San Francisco, and what Christendom regards as blasphemous, may be safely assumed to be at least profane.

We are becoming sufficiently familiar in Honolulu with the secularizing of churches—that is, of native churches-by burlesques and concerts; but I hope we shall never see profane hands laid on the holy scenes which have been contributing to the entertainment of the theatre goers of San Francisco. There is too great a tendency in these days to break down the safe guards of sentiment and association; and the effort as regards the Hawaiian race has scarcely been a success. Surely then, those who seek to promote religious life and work among Hawaiians or foreigners, may more profitably build up, than break down the THEO. H. DAVIES. Honolula, June 2, 1879.

The favorite bay gelding " Gonelza," owned by Mr. H. F. Poor, and which had been entered for the Public Purse in the races on the 11th, dled in his stall on Wednesday morning last, with every symptom of poisoning, as he was left on Tuesday night in excellent condition. It is difficult to believe that any one would care so much about losing a race as to deliberately poison a fine animal like "Gonelza."
